LA Spotlight: Andy Mister at Lowell Ryan Projects

Andy Mister's large-scale photorealistic works combine drawing and painting. He begins with "found" images that are scanned, altered and cropped using Photoshop. He then reproduces these photographs by hand with exacting detail on large sheets of paper covered with lightly colored acrylic washes and subtle gradients. These beautiful and seductive works take the viewer away into the natural world, where they can not only marvel at Mister's technical skills but also the transformation of nature. The show runs through August 13th. Read Jody Zellen's review on What's On Los Angeles.
