Erin Trefry at Lowell Ryan Projects

Saturday, January 8

Erin Trefry: Box of Rain at Lowell Ryan Projects. Exploring a means of surrealist automatism, in Trefry's works fabric and paint mimic an aerial view of a landscape or map, creating multi-faceted abstract paintings. Oil paint is applied in a range of hues including greens, blues, pinks, reds and black — colors informed by memories from the artist's childhood home. The paintings are accompanied by four sculptures: hand-thrown ceramic slabs collaborate with inherited and found objects, such as bookends, brass drawer knobs, indigo textiles and purse handles. Alluding further to the cyclical nature of life, these works explore the importance of connectivity and balance. 4619 W. Washington Blvd., West Adams; Opening reception: Saturday, January 8, noon-6pm; on view through February 12; free; lowellryanprojects.com.
